Heroic Traits

Unmasking the Characters

Buzzy the Bunny and Zippy the Squirrel sat under a big oak tree, talking about superheroes.

Buzzy asked.

Zippy squeaked.

Buzzy smiled.

"Those are awesome, but real superheroes are kind, help others, and do what's right."

Zippy clapped.

"Wow! That means anyone can be a Superhero!"

"That's right! Let's go!"

Emma's Real Superpowers

Emma loved superheroes. She had posters on her walls and dreamed of flying in a bright costume with her cape flowing behind her.

One day in class, she excitedly shared her dream of becoming a real superhero.

Mrs. Lopez smiled and said, “You already have superpowers inside you!”

Emma's eyes widened.
"Superpowers?
But I don't have laser sharp eyes or big muscles!"

Mrs. Lopez chuckled.
"Oh, but you do!
Let's look for them today."

Later, Emma saw Noah drop his crayons. She picked them up and handed them back.

"That was kind of you, Emma. Kindness is a superpower!" Mrs. Lopez said.

During the break, Emma saw Mia being left out of a game. She felt nervous but said, "Hey, Mia can play too!"

Mrs. Lopez smiled. "That was brave, Emma. Standing up for others takes courage!"

At home, Emma's little brother spilled his juice. She almost ignored it but then grabbed a towel to help.

"That was very responsible of you," her mom said.

The next day, Mrs. Lopez asked, "Emma, did you find your superpowers?"

Emma grinned. "Yes! I was kind, brave, and responsible!"

Mrs. Lopez nodded
"That's right! Superheroes use their hearts to make the world better."

From then on, Emma used her superpowers every day.
